

CASE PRESENTS MEDICAL ETHICS TRAINING WORKSHOPS

By Dr Megan Best

Do you have a passion for educating the Christian public on issues in medical ethics?

Would you like to see community discussions about bioethics become more robust and informed?

Do you wish you knew what to say when something like euthanasia comes up in conversation with your friends?

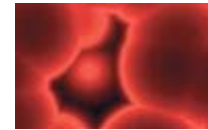

Dr Megan Best is conducting training sessions for those who would like to be able to give talks on Christian ethics at the beginning and end of life. Two evenings of training will be held at New College Village, University of NSW and are open to all. Registration for each session will include an interactive education session with resource booklet, information regarding ongoing education resources and a slide presentation on the topic for the registrant's own use as well as refreshments.

Workshop 1 – The Beginning of life

DATE | Wednesday 23 September 2009

TIME | 7:00pm-9.00pm

Workshop 2 - The End of life

DATE | Tuesday 3 November 2009

TIME | 7:00pm-9.00pm

VENUE | New College Village (UNSW)

COST | $35 for one session or $60 for both sessions

Dr Megan Best is a bioethicist and Palliative Care doctor. She teaches medical ethics at UNSW and Sydney Missionary and Bible College and has had extensive experience in developing health policy at state and federal government levels.

TO REGISTER |

EMAIL | caseadmin@newcollege.unsw.edu.au

PHONE | 02 9381 1999.

Registration closing dates are: 14 September for the Workshop 1 and 23 October for Workshop 2.